Camille Fournet is known for her collections of bags and small leather goods, perhaps less for her work as a patron, especially at the Grand Palais. On the occasion of the exhibition "Artists & Robots" until 9 July, Camille Fournet invited clients, collectors and journalists to an artistic performance around a breakfast and a guided tour of the exhibition. The highlight of the visit is the performance of the artist-composer Jacopo Baboni Schilingi at the top of the large stairs. The artist, supported by Camille Fournet, always wears a sensor that records his breath to transform him into music. With the Taiwanese dancer Peiju Chien-Pott, he delivered a performance combining movement and poetry. After the visit, all found themselves on the loggia of the Grand Palais to share a breakfast before starting this week of men's fashion.
